Andrew County is situated in the northwestern part of Missouri, in nearly the same latitude as the cities of Philadelphia and Sacramento and about the same meridian as the Lake of the Woods and Galveston. It is nearly square, being about twenty miles from one boundary line to its parallel, and embraces a superficial area of 4,423.63 square miles or 273,035 acres.

TOWNSHIP 61N • RANGE 36W

The general surface of the country may be described as rolling or gently undulating, although there are exceptions to the rule in several townships, where, in certain localities along the water courses, are to be seen abrupt hills and deep ravines. That part of the county bordering upon the Missouri River is considerably broken, the bluffs at Amazonia being from sixty to over two-hundred feet high, and of romantic boldness.

The Platte River runs from north to south through the western part of the county, passing in its course through Platte, Empire, Rochester and Monroe Townships. This is a stream of considerable size and importance, and it was along its banks that many of the first settlements in the above named townships were made.

TOWNSHIP 61N • RANGE 35W

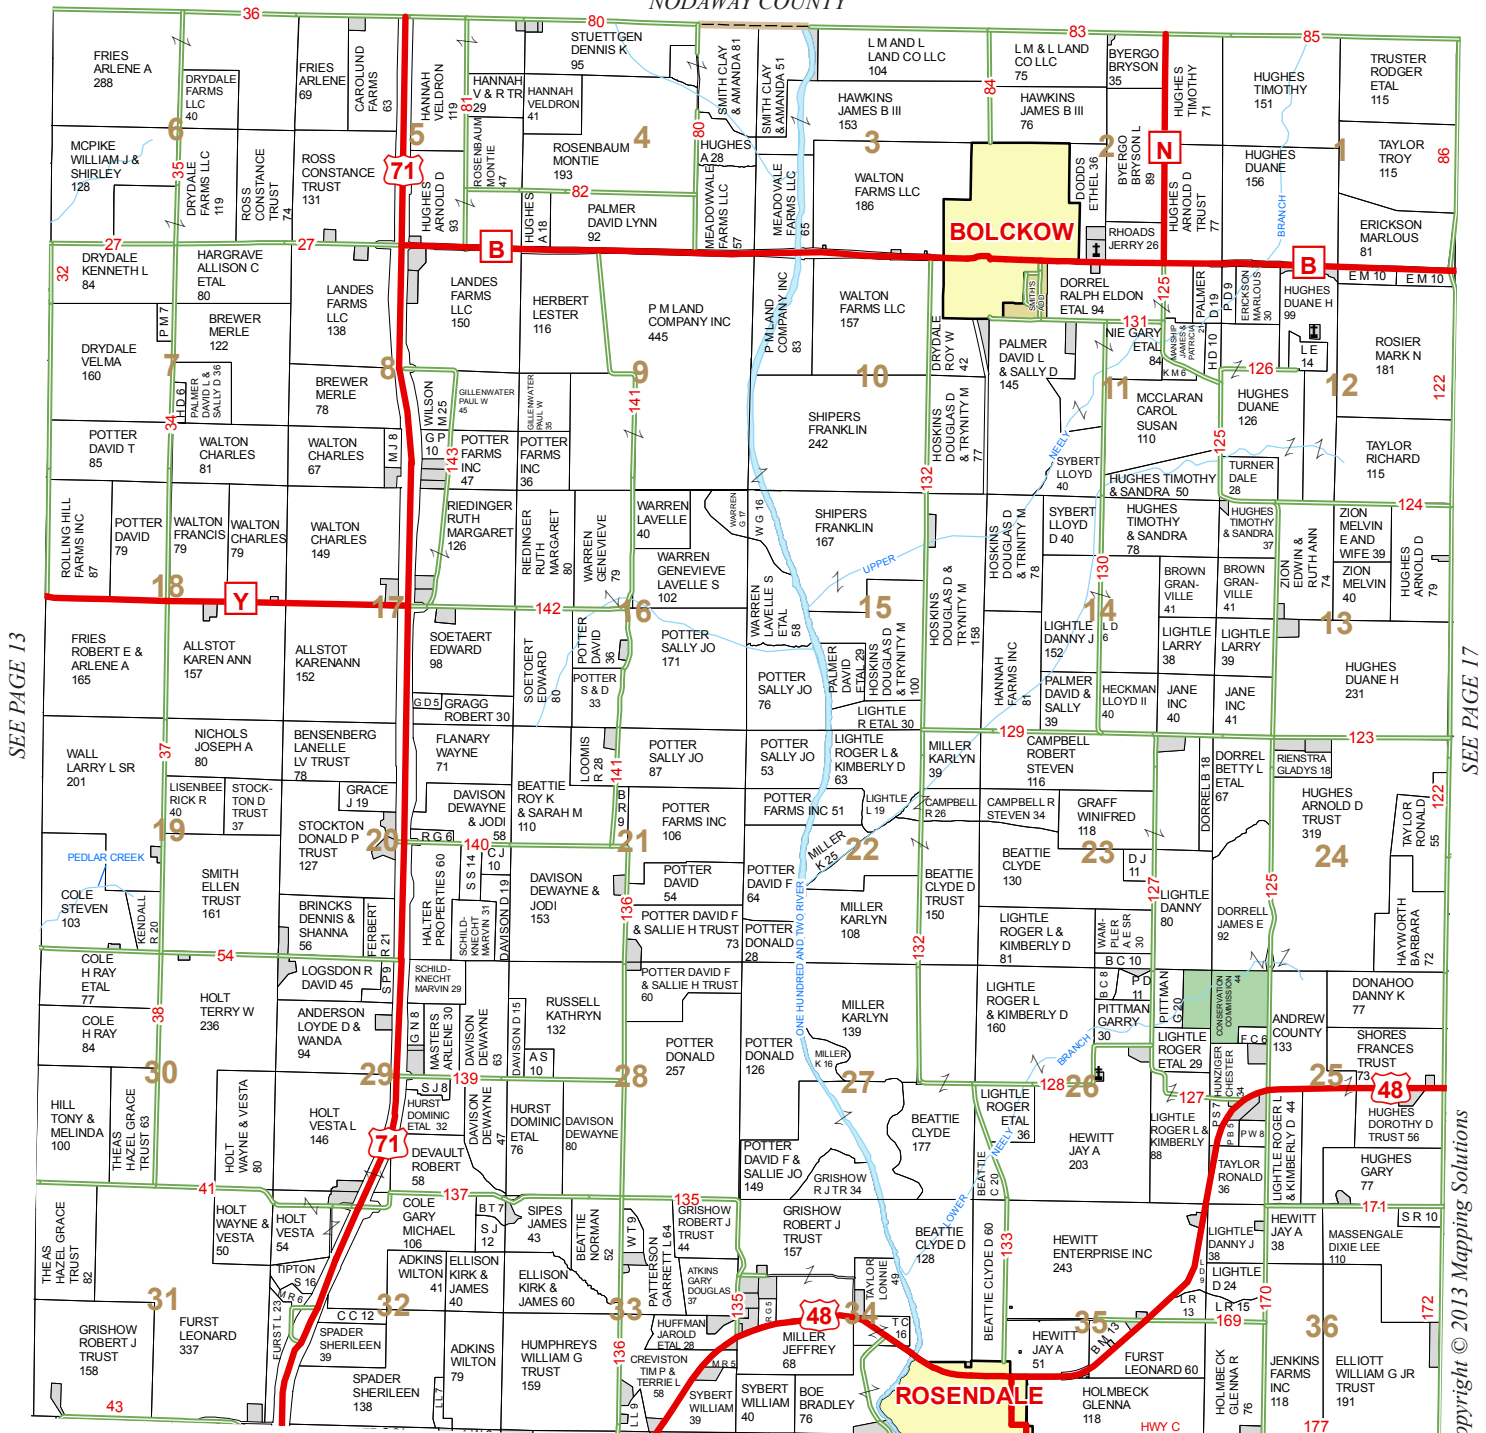

The prairies are beautifully rolling, and characterized by a black loam soil of great depth and fertility, the remains of decayed vegetation that have been accumulating for centuries. This has for a subsoil a calcar eo-siliceous clay, known as marl, which, when thrown to the surface from the bottoms of wells, and allowed to stand the freezing of one winter, has produced, without the aid of fertilizers, almost as well as the black mold itself. Empire Prairie, in the northwest corner of the county, is quite level, and presents as fine an area of farm land as can be found anywhere in the State of Missouri.

One of the principal crops to which this locality is specially adapted is corn. This, the noblest looking of all the cereals, does well on the arable soils which cover our hills and prairies, but grows in the richest profusion and highest perfection in the deep, rich alluvium of our river bottoms. No other crop is more easily gathered, or less liable to damage after reaching maturity. It never fails to bring to the farmer the realization of the hopes he indulges as to the certainty of his harvest.

They have large vineyards in the vicinity of Amazonia, and the manufacture of wine is with them an extensive and lucrative industry. From seven acres in grape culture, one gentleman has realized in one season over 4,700 gallons of wine, worth new on an average $1 per gallon. The other fruits of this latitude are cherry, plum, apricot and the different varieties of berries, all sure of rapid growth and large returns; but their culture, heretofore, has been mostly for domestic uses and not largely for commercial purposes.

Honorable Upton Rohrer was a native of Ohio, and one of the earliest pioneers of Andrew County, moving here in 1837, and settling on what is known as the Round Prairie, not far from the present site of Fillmore, in Jackson Township. He appears to have been a man of more than ordinary judgment and intelligence, and, as presiding justice of the first court, deserves especial mention on account of his administrative ability and impartial, and untiring efforts in behalf of the county's interests. He resigned his position in 1842, and after several years spent upon the farm, immigrated to Texas, where his death subsequently occurred.

William Deakin was also a pioneer of Andrew County, his arrival antedating the year 1838. He settled in what is now Jefferson Township, and early earned the reputation of an honorable and intelligent citizen, many of his neighbors being indebted to him for encouragement and counsel. Possessed of a strong appreciation of the value of integrity, and justice and well defined purity of purpose, it won for him an enviable distinction as a member of the court in the deliberations of which he took such an active part.

Andrew County designated three commissioners for the purpose of fixing upon a location for the permanent seat of justice. These commissioners were Harlow Hinkston, of Buchanan County; Elijah P. Howell, of Clinton County and Elijah Armstrong, of Daviess County, said to have been men of fine sense and excellent judgment. By reference to the records of the first county court we find an order for the said commissioners to convene at the house of Gallant Rains on the second Monday in April, 1841, and report upon the site selected.

The following appears the report of Benjamin K. Dyer, commissioner of the seat of justice, the material part of which is to the effect that, "in accordance with the instructions from and by the Court," he laid off the seat of justice into blocks, streets and alleys, which report, after being duly inspected, was received and ordered placed upon the records. By order of the Court, the name Savannah was adopted instead of Union, and the streets of the newly founded town were ordered numbered and named. Thus was Andrew County's permanent seat of justice properly located and established, and from a very insignificant beginning the beautiful little city of Savannah started forth upon its subsequent prosperous career.

As already stated, the first sessions of the courts were held in the private dwelling of Gallant Rains, and when the weather permitted in the shade of a large elm tree, the over-arching branches of which formed an appropriate canopy for such an august assemblage. It was early determined, however, to provide a place for holding court more in keeping with the dignity of the growing county, and at the July term of 1841 an order was made for a courthouse to be erected in the town of Savannah.

Mr. Nash was one of the pioneer printers of Northern Missouri, and appears to have been a man of intelligence and average literary ability. He continued the publication until the summer of 1846, at which time he abandoned the sanctum, exchanging the quill for the musket, and enlisted in one of the first regiments recruited for the war with Mexico. Of his military career and subsequent life we are left in the dark, for, on leaving Savannah, he soon passed out of the recollection of the people.

Until after the treaty of September 17, 1836, made with the Sacs, Foxes and Ioways, the spirit of adventure incident to permanent settlement was scarcely developed in the minds of the white people contemplating immigration to what is now Andrew County. It is true that, several years prior to the consummation of said treaty, quite a number of people, anticipating the ultimate acquisition of the territory, and lured by the advantages it offered in the way of cheap lands, abundance of game, etc., made temporary settlements in various parts of the country, setting at defiance the laws in so doing.

As early as the fall of 1836, shortly after the consummation of the treaty referred to, one Joseph Walker, a Kentuckian, anticipating the ultimate prosperity of this part of the "Purchase," emigrated from Clay County, and became the pioneer in fact of the settlers of Andrew. He selected a home site in the eastern part of what is now Lincoln Township, and immediately erected a diminutive round pole cabin adapted only to the immediate wants of his family. This being done he began backwoods life in earnest, and within a short time succeeded in clearing and preparing for cultivation quite a respectable area of land. It was soon ascertained that, situated as he was, the only white settler within a radius of twenty miles or more.

The information that is displayed in this Plat Book is a guide to landownership in the unincorporated areas of the county. Landowners within rural subdivisions and city limits are not shown. The data contained in this publication has been compiled from public records. Due to the continually changing data from the sale and transfer of property and the potential for errors in the data base, irregularities in these maps may be found. The contents of this book are not intended for legal use in sales or transfers of property. The information displayed within each individual parcel is determined by the size and shape of each parcel and may include all or part of the following information: Owner's full or abbreviated name, Secondary owner, Owner's initials and Acreage. Parcels of less than ten acres are mapped on the Landowner map pages but may not contain any owner information due to space limitations. All landowners in the unincorporated areas of the county with parcels 5 acres and above are listed in the landowner index.

This book contains two separate maps per township. Township maps on even numbered pages feature roads and road labels along with named water bodies. Subdivisions and city roads may be shown but will not be labeled. Township maps on odd numbered pages feature the landowners and roads, not all roads may be labeled on the landowner maps due to space constraints. Andrew County.... a little bit of history

Andrew County was named in honor of Andrew Jackson Davis, late prominent resident of St. Louis, and dates its history as a separate jurisdiction from the year 1841. After the consummation of the Indian treaty of 1836 immigration began pouring into the Platte country quite rapidly, and by the above year the settlers were sufficiently numerous in this part of the "Purchase" to warrant the formation of a new county. Accordingly, on the 29th of January, 1811, the following enabling act was passed by the Legislature: "Be it enacted, etc., etc., that all that territory included within the following described limits, to wit: Beginning at the northeast corner of Buchanan County, and running thence north along the former western boundary line of the state to the line dividing townships number sixty-one and sixty-two; thence west to the main channel of the Nodaway River; thence down the middle of the main channel thereof to the most southern crossing of said river of the range line dividing the ranges thirty-six and thirty-seven; thence south with said range line to the middle of the main channel of the Missouri River; thence down said river in the middle of the channel thereof to the northwestern corner of Buchanan County; thence east with north line of Buchanan County to the place of beginning, is hereby created a separate and distinct county, to be called and known by the name of the county of Andrew, in honor of Andrew Jackson Davis, late of St. Louis." (Excerpt Taken From: History of Andrew and DeKalb Counties, Missouri 1888)

Savannah, the county seat, was laid out in 1841. First briefly called Union, it was renamed for Savannah, GA. The Platte Co. R. R. (C. B. & Q.) reached there in 1860, and today's Chicago Great Western in the late 1880's. In the post Civil War years, the town grew as a shipping point and trading center.

A divided county during the Civil War, Andrew sent troops to both sides. In Aug., 1861 come 1500 from Andrew and other counties joined the pro-Southern Missouri State Guard at Camp Highly in eastern Andrew County while others joined a large Union camp in adjacent Gentry County. In 1861, Union troops seized "Northwest Democrat," a pro-southern newspaper, in Savannah and troops from Camp Highly seized the "Plain Dealer," Union newspaper. Raiding guerrilla bands overran the county through 1863.

Andrew County's glacial plains support fertile livestock, grain, and fruit farms. In the county are One Hundred and Two Platte Rivers and forming its west border are the Nodaway and Missouri. In 1804 the Lewis and Clark Expedition camped on an island at the mouth of Nodaway and members of fur trader Wilson P. Hunt's 1811 Astorian Expedition wintered near the river's mouth.

Among the county towns are Amazonia, once on the Missouri River, now inland, laid out in 1857 near the site of Nodaway City, early river port; Fillmore, 1845; Whitesville, 1848; Rochester, 1848; Bolckow, 1868; Rosendale, 1869; Rea, 1877; Helena, 1878; and Cosby, 1882.

Andrew County is the birthplace of Nellie Tayloe Ross, the first woman Governor of Wyoming, 1925-27, first woman Director of the U.S. Mint; Joseph K. Toole (1851-1929) first Governor of Montana, 1935; W. Elmer Holt, Governor of Montana, 1935; Edwin W. Toole (1839-1905) noted Montana Lawyer; Eugene W. Caldwell (1870-1918) noted roentgenologist (an obsolete name for radiology). In Savannah lived John P. Altgeld, Governor of Illinois, 1893-97; Henry S. Kelley (1832-1911) legal textbook writer; James P. Somerville, one of founders of Sertoma Clubs International.

THE PUBLIC LAND SURVEY SYSTEM

The Public Land Survey System (PLSS) is a way of subdividing and describing land in most of the United States. The system starts with a principal meridian, which is a north-south line. There are 37 principal meridians in the United States. Each principal meridian has a base line that runs east and west through it. Land is described as being east or west of the principal meridian, and north or south of the base line associated with that meridian. Land is typically divided into 6-mile square townships. Townships are described with reference to their principal meridian and base line.

Example: A township is described by its position in relation to the lines called Base Lines and Principal Meridians. A Township is identified by a Township number based on how far N or S it is from the Base Line, and a Range number based on how far E or W it is from the Principal Meridian. See Fig. 1 - T3N R3W is 3 positions N of the Base Line and 3 positions W of the Principal Meridian.

Each Township contains 36 Sections, each a mile square. Sections are numbered by starting in the NE with Section 1, W to Section 6, S to Section 7, E to Section 12 and so on until Section 36 is reached in the SE corner. See Fig. 2

Sections may be further subdivided into quarter-sections (160 acres) and quarter-quarter sections (40 acres). See Fig. 3 Divisions can also be made by halves and are referred to by N, S, E or W 1/2. By this method, land can be subdivided and referenced in many ways. Fig. 4 shows several different divisions and their descriptions.

CIVIL TOWNSHIPS AND CONGRESSIONAL TOWNSHIPS
Civil (or Incorporated or Political) Township boundaries may not correspond to Townships described by the Public Land Survey System described above. Civil Townships may follow County boundaries, water features, or other delineations different from the square Congressional Townships described in the PLSS.
